Using PDAs in Libraries Colleen Cuddy, 2005. Personal Digital Assistants (PDAs) are portable multifunctional and able to connect with computers and networks. They are both a fast selling consumer device and a hot technology for libraries. This timely guide helps librarians and information professionals understand how these devices fit into day to day operations and how libraries can become more accommodating to PDA using patrons. Cuddy provides an overview of PDAs including their history, a comparison of different makes and models and a look ahead at their future growth. She explores the wireless benefits, storage options and valuable peripherals: cameras, barcode readers, cardswipes, printers for PDAs. Software applications: Microsoft Word document readers, Web browsing and more are examined and discussed. The use of PDAs in collection development and provision of materials: e journals, e books, databases is outlined. Special sections cover the applicability of this technology to special projects including delivering content to users, developing applications, lending policies both for PDAs and PDA readable content, mobilizing staff, marketing and promoting services, developing instruction, privacy and security and more. Practical and easy to understand, this manual demystifies PDAs and prepares professionals to harness their portable power.

Just Say No to Microsoft Tony Bove, 2005. Just Say No to Microsoft begins by tracing Microsoft's rise from tiny software startup to monopolistic juggernaut and explains how the company's practices over the years have discouraged innovation, stunted competition and helped foster an environment ripe for viruses, bugs and hackers. Readers learn how they can dump Microsoft products even the Windows operating system and continue to be productive. The book also shows how to work successfully and seamlessly with computers and people who are still hooked on Microsoft software. Includes full explanations of alternate operating systems such as Linux and Mac and outlines various software applications that can replace the familiar Microsoft products.
